

A method for validating and ordering services and products online

Abstract

The Digital Order Validation System (DOVS) consists of software combined with validation data to provide a secure method to conduct transactions for photo processing services over a wide area network (e.g. the internet). The invention allows internet based photo processing services and products to be deployed at traditional retail points of sale.